Fun and furry I love the Chicken Soup pet books and will continue buying them no questions

Heart warming as usual

I learned early on that dogs were special. Growing up, Smokey (our poodle) was my best friend. Since then I've had the pleasure of many more special four-legged friends. The stories in this Chicken Soup edition remind us just how amazing these furry people are and that it is often we who are rescued by them. I'm a proud contributor to this special volume. Check out my story, #96 - Rex to the Rescue for a glimpse of a dog's contribution to therapy.

Who doesn't love dogs? I've often thought they were put on the earth to teach us how to love unconditionally. After all, we all know what "dog" backwards spells. I just finished reading this and thoroughly enjoyed every story. Some were poignant, some were hilarious, and all were excellently written. I contributed a story, too. It's called He Wouldn't Hurt a Fly. It's about the "guard dog" we were supposed to get who turned out to be a lover, not a fighter. I promise you'll enjoy this book, especially if you can't live without our furry, four-legged pals. Here's a photo of my pal.

This is a great collection of stories about dogs and the wonderful things they do. You can't help but smile and laugh as you read these stories. This one is a favorite in my vast collection of Chicken Soup for the Soul books.
