Susan Linnet Cox has been involved in all areas of photography and styling for over two decades. She is the founder of multiple photo styling workshops and teaches college courses while continuing to work as a stylist and mentor to newer stylists. She lives in Carlsbad, California.

Styling is a buzz word right now when it comes to celebrities and reality shows. Since I do not live in NYC or LA, these are not options for me. But knowing that so much styling goes into every photograph I see in my mail, emails and magazines, I knew there was a market for styling beyond what the young, trendy girls were into. Susan took the time to write down every practical (and often un-glamorous) detail that makes you feel like you are as prepared as you can be for a shoot. It breaks down all the different types of styling and gives you challenges to do at home for practice. Equally as important as styling skills are ways to market yourself as a freelancer, which she also covers. There are so many variables that can effect the outcome of a shoot/project, but I feel much more confident after getting what feels like a rare, inside-look at the styling world - minus the drama.

Great book. Horrible course to take for 16 weeks. Opt to simply read the book.

Interesting stories in setting up product photograph sets.

Susan has written a very thorough book about the photo styling industry. I read it cover to cover. I have also purchased one of her dvd's, as well as following her on Face Book.

The author of this book passed away last year and her passing is a huge loss to everyone.

Well, I was kind of disappointed when I received this book. It has a good content, many useful advices, but the book just doesn't look nice. Bad, dark paper, with pretty bad, black and white photos... really?! Ok, there are some color photos in the middle of the book (as if it was published 20 years ago). It is a book about style, so in my opinion it has to be presented as a style book, not as a cheap 20 years old brochure.
