It Is Not Time For Sleeping

Synopsis

As the day comes to an end, bedtime draws near. But the little boy in this book is quite sure it is NOT time for sleeping. As each piece of his evening routine is completed—helping with the dishes, playing with the dog, getting into pajamas, brushing teeth with Dad, being tucked in by Mom, and listening to a story—he becomes a little more certain: it is definitely not time for sleeping. The question is, when WILL it be time for sleeping? A rhythmic, cumulative text and lush twilit scenes come together to create a perfect bedtime book that will be treasured for generations to come.

Behind the Scenes with Lauren Castillo An inside look at the art behind  It Is Not Time for Sleeping; a new picture book from author Lisa Graff and Caldecott Honor Winning illustrator, Lauren Castillo.

A page of early character studies from my sketchbook, drawn with pen and markers. A page from the It Is Not Time For Sleeping sketchbook. Title page spot illustration, inked and ready to be painted.

Painted spot art for the dedication page. A painted spread from the book, almost complete. Laundry line in my studio where all the art hangs while I am working on the book. The painted cover in progress.

PreSÃ¢ –Â •Bedtime routines are a staple in most young children's lives and can be a source of comfort as well as conflict. This charming and endearing picture book centers on one little boy who is very conscious that every task he completes brings him closer to bedtime. When he is taking his bath and is told to get out soon, he stalls for more time because "it is not time for sleeping." When his parents remark that he looks cozy after putting on his pajamas he responds, "Not too cozy," because, after all, it is not time for sleeping. Readers follow the child and his ever-faithful dog through each bedtime task, all of which end in the now-familiar refrain. With excellent use of shading and shadows, the artwork shows the darkening sky through the windows, and a cozy atmosphere permeates the pages. Ultimately, the boy can't fight his fatigue any longer, and after a hug from his parents, he declares that it is indeed now time for sleeping. Castillo's evocative illustrations are warm and comforting and set exactly the right tone. Best known for her middle grade novels, Graff proves that she can deliver the goods to picture book audiences. VERDICT An excellent candidate for bedtime sharing or to put together with Jane Yolen's How Do Dinosaurs Say Goodnight and Greg Pizzoli's Good Night Owl for a sleepy storytime theme.Ã¢ –Â •Amy Nolan, St. Joseph Public Library, MI

of cozy closing images, creating interior starry splendor. A very good goodnight book."

•Kirkus "The way the parents continue to carry out the nighttime rituals all the way through to a final hug and a "we love you" is respectful of the child's independence, while encouraging kids at home to settle in and allow themselves to fall asleep, too." •Horn Book Praise for Nana in the City *A 2015 Caldecott Honor Book*Huffington Post Best Picture Book about Family An NYPL 100 Books for Reading and Sharing A 100 Scope Notes Top 20 Book of 2014 * "[Nana in the City] deserves a place on the shelf of classic New York City picture books." •Publishers Weekly, starred review "Castillo's soft, warmly colored art expresses the child's changing feelings about the city while also depicting the characters' close bond." •Kirkus "A fine example of how firsthand experience can overcome initial fear." •School Library Journal "A rewarding picture book with a vibrant setting." •Booklist "The accessible story arc outlines worthwhile messages about openness to new experiences and changing one's perspective, all couched in the security of spending time with a loved one." •Horn Book Magazine

Amazing, whimsical, and unique. This story on bedtime offers a fresh take on the least favorite part of any kid's day. As a parent, it made me more empathetic to my child's refusals to go down quietly into the night.

My grandsons loved this - they have all sorts of ways to put off bedtime, too!

I like this book and author.

My 21/2 year old grandson loves this book. When he took it out of the wrapping at Christmas, before he had even read it he hugged it to his chest. He is very particular about books, gravitating toward dinosaurs and super heroes, so we were pleased this was a hit.

Love reading to my Granddaughter good book

Lisa Graff is one of our family's favorite authors. This book is adorable and will be read to my kids for years to come.

Great gift for our young little niece. She and her mother are enjoying it.

A gift for a nephew.
