Romanesque Manuscripts: The Twelfth Century (A SURVEY OF MANUSCRIPTS ILLUMINATED IN FRANCE)

Synopsis

The first of Harvey Miller's multi-volume Survey of Manuscripts Illuminated in France provides a definitive reference work for the intensively creative Romanesque period. This book, produced to the usual high standard, amply illustrates the extent, variety and quality of the manuscripts. An introductory essay is followed by a complete catalogue of the manuscripts and 374 photos.

Cahn's work is a superb overview of the great Romanesque era manuscripts produced prior to the Crusader period. After having spent countless hours trolling the websites of museums and libraries around the world in search of these treasures, I cannot tell you how much of a pleasure it is to step away from the computer and pick up his book that identifies the manuscript types and locations. Two thumbs up.
