Danny Silk serves on the Senior Leadership Team of both Bethel Church in Redding,CA and Jesus Culture in Sacramento,CA. He is the President and Co- Founder of Loving on Purpose, a ministry to families and communities worldwide. Danny is also the author of five books covering the subjects of building successful relationships, a culture of honor and strong families. Danny and Sheri married in 1984 and have three children and three grandchildren.

My 20-year-old son told me he had listened to Danny's podcast including this story over 20 times because it impacted him so much--so I bought it for Christmas for my 3-year-old grandson. But when I received the book I thought that I would put it away for a few years since the context of having a bad day at school seemed over my grandson's head. However, when I was called to watch him for three days while his parents were on a trip I threw it in my bag along with other books and a couple of DVDs. During those three days we played MANY games, read MANY books, went to the library, went for a walk, did many special things. My grandson insisted that I read this book to him. At the end I told him, "Eli, Grandma is very proud of you." I could tell that it went straight to his heart as he quietly replied, "Thank you." He asked me to read it the next day. Several days later after I had gone home his mother asked him what was his favorite memory of that current day. He told her, "Grandma took me to the library," and "Grandma say, I am very proud of you." That powerful message went straight to his spirit!

LOVED this little story. I read it over and over, and shared it with my four children and other adults. Needless to say, it brought moms and dads to tears at the thought that they wished they would have heard their parents say "I am so proud of you!" It brought all of us to a realization that we are to prize our children for the wonderful beings that they have been created to be, and to not attribute the rough spots in our days as character flaws. It gives us hope and courage to do even better when we hear "I am proud of you". Thank you Danny and Sheri. Love you!!

We read Danny's book, Loving Our Kids on Purpose, last year. It forever changed our perspective on parenting. One of Those Days is written for children, and it helps them understand that their value is not in performance or behavior, but rather in their identity as sons and daughters. I love conveying this to my children through a fun, but well-written book. My son is six and really enjoys reading it with my husband and me. We now read it at least two nights a week before bed. Well done, Danny - keep them coming!

Another awesome Silk Family Story about how we as parents can watch our kids make bad choices, all the while reminding our kids that our love for them is unconditional, on the "best" and worse days

Thanks so much Danny and Sherri for this book. It was amazing. You have such a tremendous gift in communicating the values of Heaven on Earth through everyday experience.

Danny Silk you are a lifter of our heads when life looks and feels like disappointment. This book is a call and reaction to seeing ourselves for who we really are in Christ and not as failures!

I love this book. It illustrates clearly and plainly Danny Silk's teaching on staying connected. Makes it easy for adults to understand as they read to their children. Excellent!

My 8 year old son loves to read this book with me.
